Mrs. Belle Heffner, 78, Burns To Death At Findlay

DAUGHTER HURT IN ATTEMPT TO RESCUE MOTHER

Home Is Destroyed; Funeral To Be Held In Circleville Tuesday Afternoon

A former Circleville woman was burned to death, her daughter was seriously burned, and her small grandson was slightly injured, at 3 a. m. Sunday, when fire destroyed their home at Findlay. They were trapped on the second floor of the house.

Mrs. Belle McCrea Heffner, 78, former wife of Dr. George W. Heffner, 615 S. Court street, died in the flaming dwelling. Her daughter, Mrs. Sara Elise Heffner Myers, was reported in serious condition, Monday, in a Findlay hospital. Mrs. Myers' small son was only slightly burned.

While the cause of the fire has not been definitely determined it is believed to have originated from defective wiring.

Dr. Heffner left Circleville Sunday morning immediately after receiving word of the tragedy and he spent the day assisting the family. The body of Mrs. Heffner will be sent to Circleville and private funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. Tuesday at the Deffenbaugh Funeral Home.

The Rev. Carl L. Kennedy, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of which Mrs. Heffner was a member, will officiate. The casket will not be opened. Burial will be in Forest cemetery on the Walling family burial ground. Friends may register Tuesday at the funeral home. The pallbearers will be school mates of her grandson, David Myers, from Findlay.

Native of Circleville
Mrs. Heffner was born June 13, 1867 in Circleville. She was the daughter of Ansel T. and Sarah Ellen Burns Walling. During the past several years Mrs. Heffner had lived with her son-in-law and daughter, Donald and Mrs. Myers. She is the last of her generation and is survived by her daughter, the grandson, and granddaughter, Marilyn Myers. Mrs. Heffner's brothers were Burns T. Walling, a Navy rear admiral, and Stuart D. Walling, a member of the Colorado Supreme Court. Both are deceased.

Upon discovery of the fire Mrs. Myers made every attempt to rescue her mother from the blazing home but Mrs. Heffner collapsed on the stairway as her daughter was escorting her toward a door leading from the dwelling. Because of the intensity of the flames Mrs. Myers was compelled to leave her mother and flee in order to save her own life.

Negro Handyman Admits Indiana "Scandal" Killing

BULLETIN

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 4—Prosecutor Robert McCrae predicted today he would have sufficient evidence "within a day or two" to file charges against Joseph Woolridge, 29, negro held as a suspect in the "church scandal" slaying of Mrs. Phyllis Coleman, 33, and Russell Kooztz, 43.

"I believe Woolridge is the man," McCrae said. "At least I have a strong suspicion of it." "We found a pair of boots in Woolridge's home, and they match the plaster casts," McCrae said. "Woolridge admitted the boots were his, but he denied he was near the old mill."

McCrae said the suspect had a long police record. In 1931 he was sentenced to 16 months in the Indiana Boys School for petty larceny, and in 1936 he was charged with public indecency twice and was sentenced to 6 months on a sodomy charge.

Clothing of the victims was sent to the state crime laboratory at Indianapolis for fingerprint analysis.

The bodies of Mrs. Coleman and Kooztz were found in the sludge of a pit 10 feet deep near the old stone mill. Both were married, and their love trysts had caused a scandal in the little Christian Church in the village of Clear Creek, where they sang in the choir.

Mrs. Coleman's husband, Kenneth, 49, told authorities he had not known of his wife's affair with Kooztz, despite the fact it was common knowledge in the community. Kooztz was general manager of the Empire Stone Quarry and led the church choir.

Mrs. Coleman worked in the office of a creamery firm and sang in the choir. Gossip about their relationship forced Kooztz to resign as Sunday School superintendent several weeks ago.

McCrae said as yet he had found no motive for the slaying, but was working on the possibility that Woolridge might have been hired to commit it.

A package of love notes, written by Kooztz in endearing terms were found in Mrs. Coleman's purse.

Until early today, a rescue party worked with a bulldozer to clear a road through the rugged terrain to remove the bodies. But due to the blizzard, authorities believed all bodies would not be recovered until late today.

Manchurian War Plants Stripped By Reds, Says Ousted U. S. Reporter

SHANGHAI, March 4—A delayed Mukden dispatch from Dick Wilson, correspondent for the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes, said today the Russians were stripping Manchurian heavy industry systematically and shipping the material to Vladivostok aboard U. S. lend-lease liberty ships.

Wilson filed the dispatch Feb. 28 after the Russians had escorted him out of Dairen where he had gone on an unauthorized visit.

He reported that the Russians were leaving the area with no war manufacturing plants that could fall into the hands of a possible enemy "if Russia chooses to fight to maintain a new grip on eastern and southern Manchuria."

Wilson said Chinese military sources believed Soviet determination to remain in Manchuria was expressed by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, Soviet commander in Manchuria, in a Red Army Day speech at Changchun.

The Chinese sources quoted him as having said: "Russia fought bitterly and lost heavily in her invasion of Manchuria and will not quickly sacrifice hard won gains."

Wilson said unconfirmed Chinese reports added that Malinovsky declared "if anybody but Russia reaches a hand into Manchuria, Russia will cut off that hand."

Wilson gave this picture of the Manchurian situation:

"The so-called Kwantung leased territory—the Dairen and Port Arthur section of Liaotung peninsula—is being turned into a Red Army arsenal of Manchuria. This is despite the Chinese interpretation of the Soviet-Chinese treaty calling for joint control of Port Arthur and creation of the free port of Dairen open to the trading ships of any nation.

"The Russians have no intention of leaving the areas they now hold in Manchuria unless they get costly economic and military concessions from China and there is a growing conviction that they will not relinquish control of Port Arthur and Dairen at any price.

"Russia interprets the Soviet-China treaty as giving her sole authority in the Dairen area for the duration of the war and the Russians won't consider the war ended until a Japanese peace treaty is signed. Meanwhile, they insist the territory is leased to the Soviet Union and is just as Russian as Moscow."

STORM SWEEPS SCENE OF CRASH

Blizzard Impedes Removal Of Bodies Of 27 Who Died In Airliner

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 4—A blinding blizzard and sub-freezing temperatures today impeded efforts to remove 27 bodies from a westbound American airlines flagship which crashed into a fog-shrouded mountain and burned, killing 23 passengers, including two babies, and the crew of four.

Bound from Dallas to San Diego, on the final leg of a flight from New York, the big Douglas DC-3 yesterday smashed into the side of a rugged, 6,000 foot peak in the Mt. Laguna range, 60 miles east of here scattering wreckage over a quarter-mile area. Both wings were sheared from the craft.

Deputy sheriffs who reached the scene of the crash, approximately 100 feet below the peak's crest, accounted for the bodies of 23 adults and the two babies. Two remaining bodies were believed buried in the fire-blackened wreckage.

Eight bodies were thrown clear, but 15 of the adults were burned beyond recognition.

Until early today, a rescue party worked with a bulldozer to clear a road through the rugged terrain to remove the bodies. But due to the blizzard, authorities believed all bodies would not be recovered until late today.

Ex-Circleville Man Slain By Japs

Capt. Chase J. Nielsen And Ashes

A box, containing the ashes of a former Circleville man, who was executed by the Japs following participation in the Doolittle Tokyo raid, is shown in the picture (above) which is reprinted from Saturday's Herald.

The father, James Farrow, of Route 2, Circleville, pointed out Monday that the box on the upper left contains the ashes of his son, Lt. William Glover (Jack) Farrow, who lived in Circleville for a few years during his youth.

His son enlisted at Zanesville where he had been an electrician. He would have been 24 if living today, the father explained.

The picture shows Captain Chase J. Nielsen, of Hyrum, Utah, in Shanghai with four boxes containing the ashes of his former mates on the Tokyo bombing flight. Capt. Nielsen survived the horrors of life in a Jap prison camp.

In two of the other boxes are ashes of Lt. Dean E. Hallmark, pilot of Nielsen's plane, and Sgt. Harold A. Spatz, both of whom were executed by the Japs, and Lt. Robert J. Meder, co-pilot of Nielsen's plane, who died of beri beri in a prison camp.

Seven persons died from automobile accidents in Ohio during the past weekend. Four others were injured.

Kenneth Ritzler, 33, of Toledo, was fatally injured when his car collided with a trailer-tractor near Woodville. His bride of two weeks, Lena, 32, was seriously injured, while a third passenger, Gottlieb Hartman of Berwick, Pa., was not hurt.

A Grafton, O., boy was killed and two Lorain men injured in week-end accidents on route No. 57 Elyria. Edward Lester Tablett, 16, was killed when struck by a car as he and Donna Brown, 13, were walking on the road shortly after midnight Saturday.

William Davis and George Belamy, Jr., 20, of Lorain, were injured when their automobile ran off the road.

Frank Slager, Jr., 16, of near Washington C. H., was killed instantly and his companion, Richard Clickner, 16, was critically injured when a light pick-up truck driven by Clickner turned over in a ditch near Bloomingburg.

Two Cleveland pedestrians died after being struck by cars. The deaths of John Vik, 61, and eight-year old Kathleen McNulty of suburban Parma, brought the Cleveland traffic toll for 1946 to 25.

Joseph Penner of Bradford also died after being struck by an automobile, and Francis Leo Zeller, 30, of Newark, died today shortly after his speeding car ran into a utility pole.

250,000 READY IN 42 STATES TO HALT WORK

Negotiations Break Off After Deadlock Develops At Long Session

U. S. SEIZURE ONLY HOPE

Government Intervention Is Only Means Of Keeping Long Lines Open

By United Press
A nationwide telephone strike appeared inevitable today unless the government intervenes to halt the walkout of 250,000 workers in 42 states scheduled for 6 a. m. Thursday.

Negotiations between the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and The Federation of Long Lines Telephone workers broke off at 2:30 a. m. today with the company standing on its offer of a 15-cent hourly wage increase and the union holding out for 18½-cents. "There is little hope that a strike can be averted unless the company changes its attitude," said Henry Mayer, counsel for the union.

General Motors Balks
General Motors dashed cold water on hopes for ending the long and costly motor dispute yesterday when the company rejected arbitration and countered with a proposal for a "secret vote" among the company's 175,000 idle workers.

In other major labor developments:

1. The CIO Auto Workers union announced agreement with 120 Detroit Tool and Die companies, averting a strike set for Tuesday.

2. Government and Industry officials feared a soft coal strike in April if United Mine Workers (AFL) chieftain John L. Lewis uses his economic power to obtain bargaining rights for supervisory employees.

3. More than 300,000 CIO rubber workers were granted wage increases of 18½-cents an hour in an industry-wide agreement reached without a work stoppage.

Negotiations Resume
4. Union and company representatives scheduled a meeting today to resume negotiations in the 117-day strike against the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Co., Stamford, Conn.

The General Motors answer to a union proposal for arbitration of their long, drawn-out dispute said that the corporation's offer of an 18½-cent hourly increase "conforms to the wage pattern of the automotive industry."

Asserting that agreement could be reached in all non-wage issues, the company demanded, "what remains to be arbitrated?"

The company's suggestion that GM's latest offer be submitted to a vote of the strikers, was termed by UAW president R. J. Thomas "unwarranted interference" in the union's affairs.

Tall Girls Demand World Equipped With Taller Men

CHICAGO, March 4—The world isn't big enough to suit Elsa Walden.

Miss Walden is six-feet, one-inch tall, barefoot. As president of the tall girls club of Chicago she wants life roomier.

"It's a small world and it's getting smaller," she said. "But we aren't asking for much—just six inches more room so we won't get caught in the squeeze of life."

Miss Walden, 23, and the 139 other girls over five feet nine inches tall in the club want longer bathtubs and beds, more space between theatre, bus and streetcar seats, higher telephones in booths, tables and longer clothes. Especially stockings—nylons, of course.

Higher sinks have come in for some consideration, but the members don't want to be encouraged to do housework, she said.

"They wouldn't object if men were six inches taller. And they are getting annoyed at the short girls who pursue tall men."

"That gets things out of balance," Miss Walden said. "Everyone can't have a tall man. There aren't that many. Maybe we need congressional reapportionment."

Rush Into Cherokee Strip Recalled By John Goeller

By PAT TAYLOR

John C. Goeller, president of city council, was interested in the condensation of Cherokee Strip, by Marquis James, in the current Reader's Digest. Mr. Goeller made a trip through the Cherokee Strip the day after the land rush in 1893.

Then 25, he was making his first trip west, buying broom grass for M. C. Goeller's Sons, of Circleville, a broom-manufacturing firm which he and two brothers operated.

At Wichita, Kans., he boarded a train for Kingfisher, across the Cherokee Strip. Something was wrong. The train was held in the station. Mr. Goeller was in a coach crowded with tough-looking soldiers and deputy sheriffs, all heavily-armed. Disliking the warlike group, he moved into the smoking compartment, which seated six men.

One of these was a Mexican doctor, wearing a broad-brimmed sombrero. When a deputy sheriff came through the coach, the doctor asked:

"Why doesn't the train pull out?"

"We have word that the Dalton gang is planning to hold up the train at Pondreok, and we're waiting to load more soldiers," the sheriff replied.

"When the sheriff said this," Mr. Goeller recalled, "the other five men in the compartment dug into their grips. All of them pulled out 45 pistols. They looked like mighty big guns to me. I had never seen anything larger than a 32."

"Why don't you get your gun out?" the Mexican doctor asked Goeller.

"I told him I was just going down to Kingfisher—like I'd been there before and wouldn't need a gun there," Goeller said.

"You couldn't go to a worse place," the doctor exclaimed. "Why there are thieves, cut-

2 GOVERNMENT AGENCIES CLASH OVER CLOTHING

WASHINGTON, March 4—One government agency accused another today of helping cause the clothing shortage.

Siding with many industry spokesmen, an official of the civilian production administration charged that price regulations of the OPA were at least partially responsible for the widespread hoarding of clothing by manufacturers.

Fabric Shortage Acute

The shortage of fabric is so acute, the COPA official said, the manufacturers must make garments out of anything they can get to keep their businesses going.

And there, he said, they run up against OPA's "maximum average price" (MAP) program, which requires each manufacturer to make a certain percentage of low-cost garments. Many are simply unable to get cheaper fabrics, he said, and thus are faced with the alternatives of violating regulations or folding up.

Naturally, he said, most manufacturers choose to continue operations in the hope OPA will relax MAP and other pricing regulations, but in the meantime the finished goods are being withheld from the market.

New Price Order Coming

The OPA plans to issue next week a new pricing order on men's and boys' clothing which is expected to boost prices on the lower-priced garments.

Louis Rothchild of the retail clothing association estimates "conservatively" that 700,000 suits are being hoarded because of the price situation.

OPA and OPA enforcement branches have moved in on hoarding in recent weeks with the aid of justice and treasury department agents. Nylon stockings and shirts are now moving fairly normally into the market as a result.

Jury Probe Slated

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury in New York is going to investigate an alleged conspiracy among textile converters and brokers to withhold fabric from the market to force OPA to boost prices, particularly on cottons.

It was understood that OPA had already approved a price increase for cotton cloth at the mill level, but that they were awaiting approval by Chester Bowles, new economic stabilizer. He is expected to make a ruling on the proposal next week.

After more than 29 years of marriage Mrs. Nellie M. Justice, the mother of five children, filed suit for divorce in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court, Monday, accusing Henry C. Justice of gross neglect of duty.

Declaring that they were married November 22, 1916, at Dayton, Mrs. Justice claims in her petition that her husband drinks in toxicants to excess and that he is quarrelsome. The petition says that four of the children are adults and that one daughter, Betty Jean, is a minor.

IRANIAN ENVOY SEEKS PROTEST ON OCCUPATION

WASHINGTON, March 4—Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala today asked the United States to protest to the Soviet Union for retention of Russian troops on Iranian territory after the March 2 deadline.

The ambassador made an early morning call on Secretary of State James F. Byrnes. He told reporters of his request afterwards.

It also was learned that Russia's failure to withdraw troops has drawn a strong note of protest from the British government.

throats and all kinds of outlaws down there."

"I didn't say anything else," Mr. Goeller related. "Finally the train started. I got out of the smoking compartment and went to the back of the train where it was less-crowded. I put my banknotes in my socks and half of my silver money in each pocket so that if the thieves held up the train, I would have a chance to save part of my money."

"When we reached Ponereek, there were several men along the track. But they didn't hold up the train. The sheriff said they probably were tipped off about soldiers."

"Then we went on into the Cherokee Strip country, which had been opened the day before. When the train stopped at a town called North End, there were thousands of people gathered around the station, but there was only one little house in the day-old town."

"The Rock Island railroad had bought 6,000 acres of land for a town site, but the people ignored this, and built their own town of South End, which is the present city."

"Most of the people had staked claims in the big rush for homesteads the day before. They were soon busy building dug-outs, sod houses and other temporary housing for the coming winter," Mr. Goeller said.

"Mr. Goeller's trip was a success. He was able to buy the broom corn he needed. He later made two other trips to the area for the same purpose, and was astonished at the speed with which the country developed."

CONGRESS CUT IN COMMITTEES RECOMMENDED

Pay Hikes, Pension Set-Up
Advocated In Streamlined
Reorganization Plan

WASHINGTON, March 4—A special senate-house committee today recommended elimination of more than half of the standing congressional committees as part of a far-reaching, 37-point reorganization plan designed to meet "a grave constitutional crisis."

A $5,000 a year increase in congressional salaries and a pension plan for congressmen were among other proposals made by the 12-man committee after a four month study on ways to streamline the national legislature.

Government At Stake
The committee said its recommendations were made "in response to a widespread congressional and public belief that a grave constitutional crisis exists in which the fate of representative government itself is at stake."

More and more, the report said, public affairs are being handled by administrative agencies headed by non-elected officials "with only casual oversight by congress." But government by administration, it declared, is a dangerous object of "group pressures which weaken its protection of the public interest."

Committees Top Problem
The report said the existing committee system was the No. 1 problem involved in an attempt to reorganize congress because it was "obsolete and overlapping" and represented a "luxury and waste of manpower."

It recommended that the senate's 33 standing committees be organized into 16, and that the house's 48 be consolidated into 18. It proposed that each senator be limited to membership on two standing committees and each representative to one major committee assignment. At present, it said, many senators serve on as many as 10 committees while some house members on as many as six or more.

Committee chairmanships are jealously guarded privileges in congress and the proposal to reduce their number was certain to meet strong opposition, especially among southern Democrats.

The report also proposed an innovation in form of official majority and minority policy committees in both houses which would chart Republican and Democratic stands and strategy on all legislation.

Here are the things you want in a GOOD JOB

If you sat down and made a list of all the advantages you'd like to find in a job, you'd wind up with something very close to what the Regular Army offers you right now. If you've never thought of an Army job that way, check over these points:

- 1. GOOD PAY
Most of your Army pay is clear savings. Food, shelter, clothes, medical and dental care are all provided. Insurance, amusements and other incidentals cost far less. You're way ahead of the average civilian.
- 2. TRAINING
It takes first-class technical training to handle the Army's modern equipment. That's why you get thorough instruction in one or more of 200 skills. The best trade schools in the world fit you for a future career.
- 3. TRAVEL
If you join for 3 years you can choose not only the overseas theater to which you wish to go, but also your arm or branch of service.
- 4. STEADY WORK
There's no uncertainty about your Army job. No lay-offs. You work eleven months a year and get twelve months' pay, with a 30-day paid vacation every year.
- 5. ADVANCEMENT
The new Army needs a high percentage of technical experts. If you have the ability, you can earn quick promotion to higher grades, with more pay. And there's always an opportunity for qualified men to become candidates for officers' training.
- 6. CARE OF DEPENDENTS
The Army pays liberal family allowances for dependents of men who enlist before July 1, 1946. Army service need not interfere with a happy married life.
- 7. THE FUTURE
Every young man who joins the Army before October 6, 1946, is entitled, under the GI Bill of Rights, to further education after discharge. After a 3-year enlistment, for example, you can have a full course in college, trade or business school, with tuition up to $500 per ordinary school year paid by the Government, as well as $65 a month for living expenses — $90 a month if you are married.
- 8. SECURITY
If you choose to stay in the Army, you can retire at half pay for the rest of your life after 20 years' service, and so on up to three-quarters pay after 30 years' service. As a civilian you would have to pay $84 a month for annuities to provide such a retirement fund.
- 9. START NOW
You can take this job immediately if you are 17 to 34 years of age, and physically and mentally fit. Enlistments may be for 1½, 2 or 3 years. Find out more about one of the world's best jobs from your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station today!

HOME SWEET HOME

THOUGH today's homes contain more luxury and comfort, more devices for work and play than ever before, young folks don't come home until four in the morning and home-breaking parents fill the divorce courts. These reflections of a national situation were recently discussed by a Catholic priest, two judges and a welfare institute.

The priest endorsed the church idea, which discourages divorce and maintains children, should be held together. The social worker felt children generally were better off with their parents divorced than living in a home filled with tensions. The judges were for new emphasis on the father in role of family head, investing him with authority to insist, among much else, that his teen age children keep reasonable hours.

It's a queer world. Half the populace desperate for lack of homes; the other half, especially the young, not wanting to spend much time in their homes, and the divorce rate rising throughout the country. Discussions like these and that on a recent Town Meeting of the Air may help. Suggestions from priests, judges and social workers are valuable, as well as those from other thoughtful people.

FORGETTING AND FORGOTT

POOR memory does not necessarily indicate oncoming age. Cincinnati University's psychology professor, Arthur Bills says that forgetfulness is due to the rapid onrush of world events. The new forces out the old. This sounds like more than theory, too. Isn't the friend who permits himself discreet forgetfulness more treasured than he who recalls every word said, every act of his associates? Anyway, who wants to remember everything? "Teach me to forget" was a sound and ancient prayer.

RUBBER

THERE will soon be rubber again—crude rubber from the Orient, and all the wonderful things that can be made from it, with special emphasis on Junior's rubber boots. We have had some such things in recent years, but made of poor material and pitifully short-lived.

Really, there is going to be a lot of satisfaction in seeing so many of the so-called necessities of life come trooping back again, as the war fades and the treasured foreign goods are restored.

Sometimes we think there was merit in the ancient Roman practice of changing the head of government every six months.

Considering how much there is of the English language, we might find a better definition of these youngsters than "teen agers."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March, 4—A five weeks trip through five southeastern states has proved a lesson to me in fretting about Washington.

When the Wyatt housing program came out, with its scheme for a government cash bounty to high-cost producers of building materials so as to avoid a price increase and inflation, I went to some leading men in the construction industry, and asked:

Q.—"Tell me off the record what you really think about this new housing plan. Will it work?"

A.—"We have not read it."

Q.—"You have not read the Washington plan which proposes to revolutionize systems in your own industry?"

A.—"Well, we have been pretty busy."

Q.—"But how can you operate without keeping up with the Washington plan of control?"

A.—"Our experience has been that Washington has a new plan every day—or well, anyway every week. By the time we understand the first one, the second one changes it all around. If we kept up with Washington plans, we could not keep up with our work, so we keep up with our work."

I left somewhat disillusioned about the awesomeness of the federal planning, but still skeptical that these construction people knew their business. My doubts were dispelled a few days later, when, (amazingly to me), Washington announced an increase of $5 per thousand on lumber to follow the $5 a ton increase in the price of steel—the two basic materials of the construction industry. Surely enough, these fellows were right. Before the subsidies to avoid price increases had been considered in congress, price increases had been announced in the two lines which mattered most.

Undaunted, when the wage-price-profits program was announced, I sought out leading business men and asked:

Q.—"How will your business be affected by the plan to increase wages by 30 percent over pre-war, while limiting price increases to give you a pre-war profit, restricted to the number of dollars you made then dollars now worth half as much?"

A.—"What plan is that?"

Q.—"Why the new Bowles anti-inflation plan. It was in all the papers."

A.—"Oh that. We read something about it. The papers said we can apply for a higher ceiling right away instead of waiting six months, but we did not look into it."

Q.—"Yes, but the stock market slid down three days running in the biggest drop since the last depression, and the expert analysts tell me, with apparent soundness, that it would put the capitalist economy into a straight-jacket which will surely squeeze the life out of it."

A.—"Our experience has been that these Washington plans seldom work out the way they say."

Q.—"You mean Washington says one thing, and then does another?"

A.—"Well yes, in a way. They have to, because they get balled up. I also heard that the nation's No. 1 nudist announced a global campaign to do away with clothing. I just do not think it will work out that way. I will bet you 2 to 1 people will be wearing clothes next year, and possibly the

DIET AND HEALTH

Are You An Alcoholic Or Do You Just Drink Too Much?

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHAT confuses many people is why do people use alcohol beverages to excess?

Well there are many causes. Some of these people are suffering from severe mental disturbances which require the attention of a specialist in diseases of the nervous system, that is, a psychiatrist. But, according to Dr. Howard W. Haggard of Yale University, the majority of those who drink to excess are normal human beings whose condition can be controlled by sympathetic treatment. It is his opinion that these persons should be treated by the physician.

Feeling of Confidence

The first part of the treatment is to establish the proper feeling of confidence between the patient and the doctor. The doctor cannot be pessimistic about the outlook. It must be his effort not only to build in the patient the desire to be cured, but also the belief that cure is possible. If there is any lack of confidence, the patient will react badly to it.

Persons who use alcoholic beverages to excess are called alcoholics. A true alcoholic, according to Dr. Haggard, can abstain from drinking for a time, but he cannot be moderate in his drinking. Dr. Haggard therefore suggests that, in determining as to whether or not the patient really is an alcoholic, the patient limit himself to two drinks a day for a time. If he can do this, he is not really a true alcoholic.

Mental Disturbance

Alcoholism may occur as a result of certain mental disturbances, one of which is known as a manic-depressive psychosis. Persons with this condition drink at intervals, with periods in between when they abstain. Steady and wild drinking is suggestive of a mental condition known as schizophrenia.

The great majority of drinkers, as mentioned above, are not of this type. They are persons who drink excessively because of troubles, worries and problems which they seem unable to solve or to meet in the proper manner.

Arousing Fear

In some cases a cure may be brought about by arousing a fear in the patient's mind by explaining to him the rapid deterioration which may occur from the abuse of alcohol. Sometimes enough resentment may be aroused in his mind against his enslavement to alcohol that he will exert enough effort to break the habit.

Once the desire to be free of the habit is great enough, some form of faith healing, according to Dr. Haggard, will help complete the treatment. The patient may respond to a rational explanation of what the habit is doing to him.

Sometimes by the administration of certain drugs which produce sickness of the stomach and vomiting, an actual distaste for alcoholic beverages may be aroused but this only lasts a short time. If possible, the services of a specialist in diseases of the nervous system should be secured and such organizations as Alcoholics Anonymous have helped many cases.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

THE REST of the day no person- al word was spoken. Two men from the Navy Department arrived early in the afternoon and Justice was with them until closing time. Then he came into Jenny's room. He said, "We're going to work late. You go home. I don't need you—"

She said, "All right, Justice." On the way out she met Mr. Richards. He said, "I'll take you home, Jenny, if you like. Besides, I want to talk to you."

She felt slightly apprehensive. If he had heard anything... But what was there to hear? She thought, reassured. If he had, he'd say so. He had known her too long and too well not to consider her one of his family.

But it was Yip Morrison who concerned him. He said, driving toward town:

"I'm letting Yip go, after a long talk with his mother. He's signing up with the Navy. She's given her consent. It will be the best thing that's happened to the kid. He still won't say where he and the Harris got the liquor that night. It's as if he were loosed. He sighed deeply. "Pooch will keep on. But Yip's different. No father, and Mrs. Morrison is an ineffectual little woman. The Navy's best for him."

Jenny asked, "Have you no idea at all?"

"Sure," said Richards. "Either the Barnacle or the Nook, or maybe that place farther out. But they've been inspected and it's all very open and above board."

"Who owns these places?" asked Jenny.

"A holding company," said Richards; "they've a chain of them all along the coast. They're leased to the men who manage them. There's one in town... they call it the Purple Parrot."

"That place?" asked Jenny, astonished. "I didn't know they'd hooked together."

"They do. But more than that we can't find out. I went to the Purple Parrot myself the other day. . . . There's nothing unusual about it. The routine juke-box, a soft drink bar, a dance floor. The kids from that part of town keep it crowded, even in summer, it's air-conditioned. But someone said that they understood there were slot machines in the back room. If so, I didn't see any. . . . I went into both rooms, on the pretext of looking for someone. I talked to the policeman on that beat. He said it was a very orderly place, run just for the kids. I talked to the manager. He said they weren't more than making their expenses, but he thought it was a civic duty to run clean, decent places where kids could go and have a good time and be kept off the streets. They close at midnight, he told me."

"Do you know him?"

"No, he isn't a Seahaven man," said Richards. "The cop—I've known him for years. He was in a jam on the force about five years ago and, while they overlooked it and kept him on the force, he never got his promotion. He has a wife and a big family. I wouldn't put it past him to accept protection money. But we can't prove anything. And at that, maybe we're all wrong. Only last night there was an accident, Jenny, out by the Barnacle. . . . kids in a car. The boy who was driving was drunk. I understand that the manager said that, yes, they'd been in his place, that they'd come in, behaved badly, and that he'd put them out."

"Who were they?"

"No one I know," said Richards. "They live in the new housing project. The girls work in shops in town, the boys—"

"All under 17, and apparently with plenty of money. The boy who was driving was badly hurt. He's at Northam hospital. No other car was involved. The kid simply drove into the ditch. People living nearby called the ambulance from Northam and the state police. They took the other boy and the two girls to Bert Barton's office. Steve was out, but Doc was there, and he had them fixed up by the time Steve came in. They were taken home."

Jenny said, "It's getting to be a problem, isn't it?"

Richards sighed. "I suppose," he said, "this is happening all over the country. Kids have more money to spend than ever before. Many of them hardly see their parents from one day to the next. School's out, there isn't even that check on them. So they barge around getting into trouble. But I'd like to get my hands on whoever sells them the stuff. Because someone does."

After supper Steve came by. He went up the steps, opened the door and shouted, "Anyone home?"

Ede wasn't. She was at Agnes Simpson's—this time, thought Jenny, she was really at Agnes'. Gram was entertaining her old friend, Mrs. Harmon, in the living room, and Jenny was writing letters.

She came tearing downstairs. She said, "I am."

He said, "I'm going to make a country call. Want to come along?"

She said she'd like to. She thought, This is where I get the works, and tossed her head mentally. It would have been easy to say no, she couldn't, she had a date, she was going to the Canteen, she had a headache, or a good book, or Gram needed her. But it was silly to stall. Get it over with.

They went off after informing Gram of their plans, and were not two blocks away when Steve said, "I didn't bring you along for the fresh air. I brought you to give you thunder and then some."

"Lovely," Jenny said complacently.

He said, driving at a legal rate of speed, and wishing he needn't, "About last night—"

Jenny interrupted brightly. "I already know. Last night some kids drove into a ditch and they took three to your office. . . . Steve, doesn't that make you want to find out what's going on in this town and stop it?"

He said shortly, "I have enough to do without meddling. The kids were tight, yes, the boy told me frankly that he'd swiped a bottle from his father's supply. That's all there was to it."

"A lot of people think these juke-box places are selling it."

"I doubt it," said Steve. "They've been investigated. They are just what they profess to be, places selling soft drinks, sandwiches and ice cream, with a mammoth juke-box and a dance floor. But I didn't bring you here to talk about that. I want to talk to you about yourself. And your esteemed boss. I watched you for a couple of minutes last night. Very effective, garden," said Steve, "moonlight and roses. Hearts and flowers. . . ."

"So what?" said Jenny. "So, I went walking with Mr. Hathaway and he was taken romantic and kissed me. What's so world-shaking about that?"

Steve said, "I don't understand you. You're the man's secretary. And he's married. That's the situation in a nutshell."

"Habit forming, isn't it?" said Jenny. "And nutshell is right."

He said angrily, "Haven't you any excuse?"

"Well," said Jenny cautiously, "I suppose I could run one up on an old loom. Justice is very attractive. Also very rich. Or hadn't his sister brought that angle to your attention?"

"What has she got to do with it?" Steve demanded.

"Don't shout," said Jenny sweetly. "Nothing at all, as far as I'm concerned."

"Go on with your excuse," he said shortly.

"It's war," she said dreamily, "forcing house of emotions. I quote. Also man shortage, or hadn't you noticed? And Justice hasn't much of a wife," she said plaintively. "She's sort of worn thin after four years' absence."

He said, "I can't believe my ears. Do you mean to sit here and tell me that you expect he'll marry you?"

"I hadn't thought that far ahead," she said. "But, now that you mention it, it's an interesting possibility."

Steve said, "I could shake the daylight out of you. You—you aren't yourself. You've changed. . . . Incredibly."

She said, "And so have you."

"The Authority on Authorities"

DIFFERENT IF DEALER

OPENING the auction in third hand position is an entirely different proposition from doing it when you are dealer. The third-hand player knows his partner is not extra strong, from the fact that the dealer passed. Third-hand can therefore take a few liberties without particular risk, if he sees fit to open it, because of great length in one or two suits, while lacking the standard minimums of high card strength. There is slight danger that his partner will hop him into an unmakeable slam.

When a dealer shades his honor strength, however, to open it, he takes the chance of finding his partner very strong, in which event an impossible slam bid may result.

3. 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
4. 1 ♠ Pass 5 ♠ Pass

The sequence of bidding given in No. 1 is what actually occurred on this rubber deal. It forcibly illustrates one danger of a dealer shading his top strength below an irreducible minimum of two defensive or general high-card tricks. The other great danger, of course, is that the opponents may do some bidding and finally get doubled by the opener's partner, who counts on the opener doing his share of the defense.

Against the impossible contract, West led his diamond J, so that two tricks in that suit and one in spades set the contract two tricks.

Notice what would have happened if South had passed, as in the second sequence. As it develops, since North said he would bid only 5-Hearts as a slam invitation, over South's proper jump to 4-Hearts on the third round, that would have landed the side in a safe contract, at which an extra trick would have been made. If East did not cash both of his aces quickly.

Of course, if the pair had used Blackwood, the unmakeable slam would have been avoided, but the danger of too high a contract would have been there anyway, with South in 5-Hearts.

Equality of Women Versus Men Discussed Once More

Best Chefs, Dressmakers, Typists—Men or Women?

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The equality of men and women—or the lack of equality—is one of the most fascinating of topics to discuss. In almost any magazine or newspaper that one reads there is an article stating one side or the other.

Some say that the war has proved without a doubt that the gentler sex can do a man's work as well as the man himself. Others excitedly insist that women must return to their kitchens and parlors and never emerge again. Many seek to prove that giving the vote to women has not improved the morals of politics or the world at large, as was prophesied. Or that many of the world's ills are directly due to women having deserted the hearth for the office.

I know one big, strong man whose favorite after-dinner topic is that the male is better than the female in every single occupation supposed to belong to the feminine gender, except that of child bearing. This, he says, is just an accident of nature.

"If men were able to have and raise children," he declares, "they'd probably do a better job of it than women. In war men proved themselves expert nurses."

"Who are the best chefs, the most famous dressmakers, the expert typists, the inspired hairdressers?" he asks. "Men, of course!"

The wife of this big, strong man was brooding over this depressing male superiority the other evening as she wrestled with bathing children and cooking dinner at the same time. The cream sauce got a little lumpy every time she left it to answer the phone or the doorbell, and the biscuits burned when she rushed to prevent the young man from flooding the bathroom floor.

She had recalled that on several occasions her husband, who has no kitchen training, had prepared some excellent dishes: roast duck and delectable creamed soups and pies.

She also remembered dinner parties she had attended when exciting courses were served—all cooked by the head of the house. Men probably are better cooks than women, she conceded, with a sigh, as she strained the cream sauce.

Then she thought back to the famous wild duck. While her husband was exerting his genius, it was she who took care of the children, set the table for him and cooked the vegetables. She wondered if those famous chefs who are

Gearhart-Snyder Union Solemnized Sunday

Methodist Church Is Scene Of Large Wedding

Miss Mary Elizabeth Snyder, SK2C, USNR, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Snyder of Kingston, and Capt. Fred Z. Gearhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Gearhart, "Z" Acres, Chillicothe, were married Sunday at 4 P.M. in the First Methodist Church, East Main street.

The altar was decorated with two seven-branch and three five-branch candelabras amid fern, white gladioli and palms. The center aisle was lined on either side by tall cathedral candles, tied with tulle and smilax.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Swearingen, pastor of the Methodist Church, and the Rev. M. Carl Kennedy, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white slipper gown, made on princess lines, with a full train and inserts of Irish lace at the yoke, a floor-length veil of tulle, falling from a satin "Mary of Scots" headpiece.

Mrs. George R. Bowers, Laurelville, was matron of honor. Miss Jane Henne, SK2C, USNR, of Bayport, Mich., and Miss Helen Ann Osborne, of Clendenin, W. Va., were the bridesmaids. Dresses of the matron of honor and the bridesmaids were of white lace with bodices, and full net skirts with which they wore long white lace gloves. Miss Henne carried a blue spray arm bouquet, and Miss Osborne carried a yellow arm bouquet. Mrs. Bowers carried pink flowers with a bandeau of natural flowers in her hair to match.

The candles were lighted by Miss Martha Freshour, Kingston, a sorority sister of the bride, and Miss Harriet Heffner, Ashville, the bride's cousin. They were dressed in white lace and net, with varied-colored corsages.

The flower girl was Miss Barbara Uhl, Painesville, Ohio. She wore a short, white net and lace dress.

The ushers were Fred Harman and John W. Wilson, Chillicothe, David Glick, Circleville, and John Gearhart, of Kingston. The bridegroom's brother, Paul Wendell Gearhart, was the best man.

Music was provided by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, organist, who played Lohengrin and Mendelssohn wedding marches, and D. Glenn Uhl, who sang "At Dawning" and "Oh Promise Me."

Mrs. Snyder, mother of the bride, was attired in a black, two-piece sheer suit, with ruffles of pink, and a pink rose flower hat, with black accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a black, two-piece sheer suit, with ruffles of white, a white hat, and black accessories. Both mothers wore orchids.

Miss Snyder attended Kingston high school, Miami University, and was graduated from Ohio State University. She is a member of Chi Omega National Sorority. Capt. Gearhart attended Kingston high school and was graduated from the University of Cincinnati.

The reception was held at the American Hotel for the bridal party. Mrs. R. S. Nickerson, Cleveland, and Mrs. D. W. Glick, Circleville. The table was decorated with a three-tier wedding cake.

For traveling, the bride wore her WAVE uniform. Following a short wedding trip, Capt. and Mrs. Gearhart will make their home at Sedalia Army Air base, Warrensburg, Mo., where he is engaged in flight training and maintenance.

The bride's parents entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Hotel Saturday night. There were thirty guests, including the two ministers and their wives, and the bridegroom's parents.

Girl Scouts Plan Drive For Camp Funds

A drive has been launched to obtain funds to build a lodge for day and overnight camping for the use of the Girl Scouts of Pickaway county. It was announced today by Mrs. Bernard W. Young, Commissioner. Mrs. Ralph Curtin who has served so ably as service chairman for the organization heads the finance committee with Mrs. Mack Noggle as Treasurer. Mrs. Lemuel Weldon, Secretary.

A little over a year ago our Girl Scout Association was formed. We had had one lone troop for a number of years ably led by Miss Ruth Stout but there was no central county organization. From this one troop we have now expanded to ten troops, Brownies, Intermediate and Seniors. Many of the members of the lone troop are now serving as assistant leaders.

"When our organization was formed," says Mrs. Curtin, "we had two dreams, two ambitions: a headquarters of our own and a camp which would be available to all girl scouts of the county. Our first dream has been accomplished, and we are now working toward our second goal. The camp site itself has been donated by Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Miller."

"Through the generosity of the community and community chest, funds have been supplied for the promotion of Girl Scouting and the upkeep of headquarters. None of this money can be used for building purposes."

"Therefore with the consent of the Community Chest Committee, we are starting a drive for funds to build the proposed camp lodge. The drive starts March Fourth and will continue until March 12, the Girl Scout Birthday."

MRS. HAROLD FRY GUEST OF HONOR

After Mrs. Fry opened her gifts, a dessert lunch was served by the hostess.

In addition to the honored guest, those present were, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Margaret Shadley, Mrs. Paul Hankins, Miss Ann English, Miss Jayne Metzger, Miss Lorraine Noel and Miss Christine Schreiner.

The couple received many gifts among them 15 baskets of flowers making the home a bower of loveliness. Felicitations were received from over 100 friends who were unable to attend the party.

Q. "Yes, but Washington did not sponsor that plan. Washington has great power to work its will."

A. "Well, you can take my word for this—it can't be done. If wages and costs go up, prices will go up one way and another, I do not care what Washington says or does. And if wages material costs and prices go up, profits must go up. So why should I worry and get myself another ulcer?"

My disillusionment explained. It became complete a few days later when the stock market took the same view about profits, righted itself, and went merrily on its well-advised way, for a few days, and then changed its mind a third time to assume again its initial pessimistic downward course.

Detroit Aviation Firm Buys Silex Company Plant for $70,000

BIDDING BRISK; MORE THAN 100 ATTEND AUCTION

Purchaser Refuses To State Intentions; Sale Must Be Approved

Circleville plant of The Silex Company was sold Saturday at a public auction conducted in Memorial Hall. The buyer is the Aviation Corporation of America with headquarters at Detroit, Mich. The price was $70,000.

The Detroit company is scheduled to take over the property, located at Clinton street and Half avenue, on or before April 15.

More Than 100 Attend Sale
More than 100 persons were present when Joseph P. Day, New York auctioneer, opened the auction sale. The initial bid was $25,000. The second offer was $50,000, the third was $60,000, the fourth $65,000, and the fifth and successful bid was $70,000.

The Aviation Corporation's bid was made by William Wise, the company's executive vice president. He declined to make a statement concerning the purchase or the company's plans for its Circleville operations.

The plant is a one-story hollow brick structure erected in 1926 and situated on 2 1/4 acre site. The building has 25,000 square feet of floor space, with sprinkler system. Facilities include a five-car Pennsylvania Railroad siding.

Sale Subject To Approval
Under the terms of the sale the bid must be approved within five days by the Silex Company which has headquarters at Hartford, Conn.

The Aviation Corporation recently purchased some of the Crosley holdings at Cincinnati.

The terms of the Circleville sale, as explained by Day at the opening of the bidding, were for the purchaser to pay 10 per cent of the sale price, plus $250 auctioneer's fee, on the day of the sale, with the balance to be paid on delivery of the deed on or before April 15.

The auctioneer said that it was highly probable that the Silex Co. will turn the property over to the Aviation Corporation before the April 15 deadline.

WM. M'CLARREN SEEKS DIVORCE

Charges Wife Carried Photos Of Two Other Men, Yet Spent His Money

William McClarren, in a divorce suit filed Saturday in the Pickaway County Common Pleas Court, claims that his wife, Mrs. Iola Mae McClarren, Route 1, Clarksburg, is carrying the pictures of two other men, one of them an Army officer.

Accusing Mrs. McClarren of gross neglect of duty, her husband says that he was discharged from the Army Nov. 19, 1945, and that although she received a $50 a month allotment and also earned high wages in a war plant, when he asked her for money she said she had spent it all.

McClarren also contends that she refused to disclose the identity of a man who called her on the telephone Nov. 25, 1945 and threatened her. In addition to a divorce McClarren asks the court to give him possession of the family automobile.

In another suit, filed Saturday, Mrs. Nellie J. Thomas seeks a divorce from Herbert L. Thomas on grounds of gross neglect of duty. Her petition, which contains no details of the accusation, says they were married April 5, 1944 in Circleville and that they are childless. Mrs. Thomas also asks to be restored to her former name, Nellie J. Reeser.

CHILD, 2, GAINS AFTER MOTHER VISITS SICKBED

Following a visit from her mother, two-year-old Esther Williams, a ward of the Pickaway County Juvenile Court, Monday showed marked improvement. The victim of a severe cold for the past several days the child was threatened by pneumonia.

Cared for in the home of Mrs. Dwight Wilson, the little girl cried for her mother and, after publication in The Herald Feb. 28 of the fact that the address of the mother, Mrs. Ernest Williams, was unknown, she came to Circleville from her home at Washington C. H., and visited the youngster. Juvenile and Probate Court Judge Sterling Lamb said Monday that the child is now considered "out of danger."

WOODHEALTH

For Poultry Mites and Animal Ticks

WOODHEALTH is a highly effective parasiticide. Because of its rapid penetrating properties it reaches into cracks and crevices where parasites hatch and hide during the day — kills and controls mites and ticks in poultry houses, stock shelters and barns—but does not coat the wood with a gummy film to catch dirt—does not soil fowls or animals or burn skin or feet. WOODHEALTH means healthier stock and long lasting buildings.
